MAGNET FOR OCULISTS. One of the newest and most valuable aids to oculists in repairing damage to the eyes and preventing blindness is a powerful electro-magnet which is now being used to extract splinters of iron and steel which have lodged in the eyeball or lid.

In industries where particles of iron and steel are often hurled through the air with great force the danger of loss of eyesight has always been great because there has been no way of removing the bits of metal when they chanced to bury themselves in the eyes.

The delicate structure of the eye prevents the use of the ordinary surgical instruments which could be used in the case of a like injury to any other part of the body.
